

Moretown Historical Society Newsletter

Spring 2026

Volume 1, Issue 14

A Tale of Two “Moretowns”

Many New England towns and cities were named after towns in other British colonies or in England from which early settlers emigrated. Moretown, however, was thought by historians to be unique, the only community to have that name in the world (1, p. 2; 2, p.4). Although that is true today in the United States – there is only one Moretown – historically there have been two communities in Vermont referred to as Moretown (3). The existence of a second Moretown was discovered during the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

As part of the celebration in November, 2025, a Ken Burns six-part documentary The American Revolution premiered on public television. The first episode made mention of a Colonel John Peters being sent by the residents of Moretown, Vermont to represent them in the first Continental Congress (4). In the weeks following the broadcast numerous people, including the editor of The Valley Reporter, contacted members of the Moretown Historical Society to inquire about Colonel Peters. People were excited that “Moretown” was featured on national television and surprised that Colonel Peters, a loyalist, had lived in “Moretown.” Members of the Society at first thought that Ken Burns and his researchers had made a mistake in stating that Colonel Peters was from Moretown. Historical Society members knew that the first European settlers, Seth Munson and Ebenezer Hazeltine, had arrived in Moretown around 1790, long after the first Continental Congress (1, p. 1). This led to the discovery that there had once been two Moretowns in Vermont.

The first, and present-day, Moretown was chartered on June 7, 1763 by Benning Wentworth, Esquire, the Governor of the Province of New Hampshire (6, p. 295-299). Its name may have been derived from the family of two of the original grantees, Daniel and James Moorehouse (6, p. 454).

Other Moorehouse family members received grants from Governor Wentworth at about the same time as Daniel and James (6, p. 454). To recognize the patronage of the Moorehouse family, the governor may have chosen to abbreviate Moorehousetown as Moretown (6, p. 454).

A second “Moretown” was an unofficial name used by the residents of Waits River Town (a.k.a. Waitstown), which is now Bradford, in Orange County, Vermont. Waits River Town was first officially named Mooretown in a New York patent on May 3, 1770 (7, p. 13-21). The name honored Sir Henry Moore, the Royal Governor of New York (6, p. 297). Although legally designated “Mooretown,” the residents, mapmakers, and the Vermont General Assembly often referred to the township as Moretown. Evidence for this can be found in the pay rosters for Revolutionary War scouts and soldiers from Mooretown which give their residence as “Moretown” (8, p. 140, 345, 361, 555, 716 & 753). Some of the early maps of Vermont published in 1789 (9), 1796 (10, 11), 1799 (12), 1815 (13), and 1818 (14) show Mooretown as “Moretown.”

Following the Revolutionary War, the residents of Mooretown decided that they no longer wanted to be reminded of a royal governor and petitioned the Vermont General Assembly to change the town’s name (6, p. 297). The change took place on October 23, 1788, when the General Assembly formally renamed Mooretown as “Bradford” (7, p. 30).

Indeed, there were once two Moretowns in Vermont – one official, which was chartered in 1763 and settled around 1790, and the other officially designated as Mooretown in 1770. Although patented as “Mooretown,” residents, mapmakers, and government officials often referred to Mooretown as Moretown. Even though Mooretown officially became Bradford in 1788, it took over 30 years for all reference of Mooretown/Bradford as Moretown to completely disappear.

References Cited

1. Reagan, Mary, 1982, A brief history of Moretown, Vermont for the celebration of Moretown’s heritage and St. Patrick’s Church centennial: Moretown, Vermont, Moretown Historical Society, 16 p
2. Marsh, Earline, Gabaree, Denise, Reagan, Dolly, and Moulton, Patty, 1999, A Moretown sampler, Waitsfield Telecom; June 1999-2000: Waitsfield, Vermont, Waitsfield Telecom Company, 54 p
3. Board of Geographic Names, 2026, Geographic Names Information System: online (<https://edits.nationalmap.gov/apps/gaz-domestic/public/search/names>) accessed April 19, 2026.
4. Selway, Meghan, 2025, Patriot, loyalist, neutral: differing perspectives on the American Revolution; Meet John Peters: Florentine Films, PBS LearningMedia (<https://vermont.pbslearningmedia.org/resource/patriot-loyalist-neutral-perspective-video-gallery/the-american-revolution/kenburnsclassroom/>) accessed April 20, 2026.

5. Batchellor, Albert Stillman, ed., 1895, The New Hampshire Grants being transcripts of the charters of townships and minor grants of lands made by the provincial government of New Hampshire, within the present boundaries of the State of Vermont, from 1749 to 1764; Volume XXVI, Town charters, volume III: Concord, New Hampshire, Edward N. Pearson, Public Printer, 792 p. (<https://scholars.unh.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1025&context=propapers>) accessed on April 26, 2026.
6. Swift, Esther Monroe, 1977, Vermont place-names; footprints of history: Brattleboro, Stephen Greene Press, 701 p.
7. McKeen, Rev. Silas, 1875, A history of Bradford, Vermont containing some account of the place – of its first settlement in 1765, and the principal improvements made, and events which have occurred down to 1874 – a period of one hundred and nine years with various genealogical records, and biographic sketch of families and individuals, some deceased: Montpelier, VT, J.D. Clark & Son, Publishers, 459 p. (<http://archive.org/details/historyofbradfor1875mcke>) accessed on April 26, 2026.
8. Goodrich, John E., 1904, Rolls of the soldiers in the Revolutionary War 1775 to 1783: Rutland, VT, The Tuttle Company, 927 p. (<http://www.archive.org/details/stateofvermontro00good>) accessed on April 26, 2026.
9. Blodget, William, 1789, A topographical map of the State of Vermont, from actual survey: Most humbly dedicated to His Excellency Thomas Chittenden Esqr. governor and commander in chief; the honorable the Council, and the honorable the representatives of said state: New Haven, Connecticut, Amos Doolittle.
(<https://catalog.mwa.org/vwebv/holdingsInfo?searchId=588&recCount=10&recPointer=0&bibId=462430>) accessed on April 25, 2026.
10. Carey, Mathew, 1796, Vermont from actual survey in Carey, Mathew, Carey's American pocket atlas; containing the following maps... with a concise description of each state: Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, printed for Mathew Carey by Lang and Ustick.
(<https://www.davidrumsey.com/luna/servlet/detail/RUMSEY~8~1~2992~290057:Vermont,-from-actual-Survey-?mi=19&trs=20&qvq=q:Vermont from Actual Survey;lc:RUMSEY~8~1>) accessed April 26, 2026
11. Reid, John, 1796, Vermont from the latest authorities: New York, New York, J. Reid
(<https://oshermaps.org/browse-maps?id=112855 - ?c=&m=&cv=&xywh=-4452,2640,13061,4288>) accessed on April 25, 2026.
12. Low, John and Tiebout, Cornelius, 1799, Vermont from the latest authorities: New York, New York, J. Low. (<https://www.loc.gov/maps/?q=2011589153>) accessed on April 26, 2026.

13. Carey, Mathew, 1815, Vermont from actual survey in Carey's General Atlas, improved and enlarge; being a collection of maps of the world and quarters, their principal empires, kingdoms, &c...: Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, M. Carey.

(<https://www.davidrumsey.com/luna/servlet/detail/RUMSEY~8~1~363530~90131025:Vermont-?mi=1&trs=20&qvq=q:Vermont from Actual Survey;lc:RUMSEY~8~1>) accessed on April 26, 2026.

14. Carey, Mathew, 1818, Vermont from actual survey in Carey's General Atlas, improved and enlarged; being a collection of maps of the world and quarters, their principal empires, kingdoms, &c. ...: Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, M. Carey and Son.

(<https://www.davidrumsey.com/luna/servlet/detail/RUMSEY~8~1~207278~3002994:Vermont-?mi=7&trs=20&qvq=q:Vermont from Actual Survey;lc:RUMSEY~8~1>) accessed on April 26, 2026.

By

Bob Blodgett

Howes Rd

Moretown